To Whom It May Concern:

Years ago when our deacons first began to talk about a possible expansion it was recommended that we consult with Tom Bevis of International Development Corporation. At that point we were not under contract with I.D.C. but Tom was always gracious to advise us. We then chose to go with I.D.C. because of the cost effective finished product we saw in his work at other churches.

Other pastors had cautioned us about the headaches of a building project. In our case we were doing a complete relocation which included the entire gamut of land development, therefore we were expecting that our project would be a major headache. How pleasantly surprised we have been to find many potential problems addressed in advance. Although no building program is without problems, with the consulting expertise of Tom and his employees our challenges were always addressed in a way that benefited the church.

We have repeatedly found great wisdom in the advice we have received and vouch for the integrity of this consulting group. We believe their work to be invaluable. The money saved in construction and the quality of building we now have surpasses the dollars we have invested with I.D.C. It has been a pleasure to work with Tom and we appreciate his hard work in giving us the most building for our money.

Sincerely,
